This is not a complete timetable - other trains, that do not stop at Buckenham or Berney Arms, can form part of your day out; see the full 'one' timetable or the Wherry Lines Line Guide. Times may change slightly from 9th December 2007.

x: Trains call at Buckenham and Berney Arms by request - tell the conductor you want to get off and give a clear signal to an approaching train to get on.

Bank Holidays: check with 'one' that it's a Sunday service. In the event of engineering works, replacement buses do not call at Buckenham or Berney Arms.

Other days of the week: There is a train a day at Berney Arms (two May-Sept.) Monday-Saturdays and one at Buckenham Saturdays; see the full timetable.

The stations on the Wherry Lines are like pearls on a string - explore the treasures of the Yare valley by train!

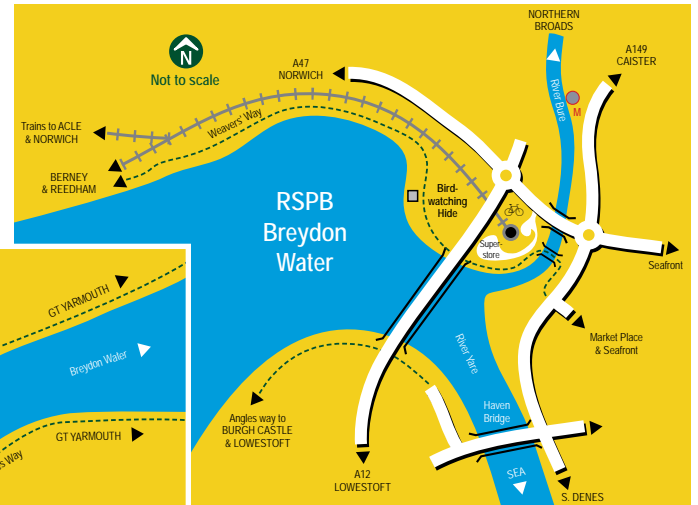

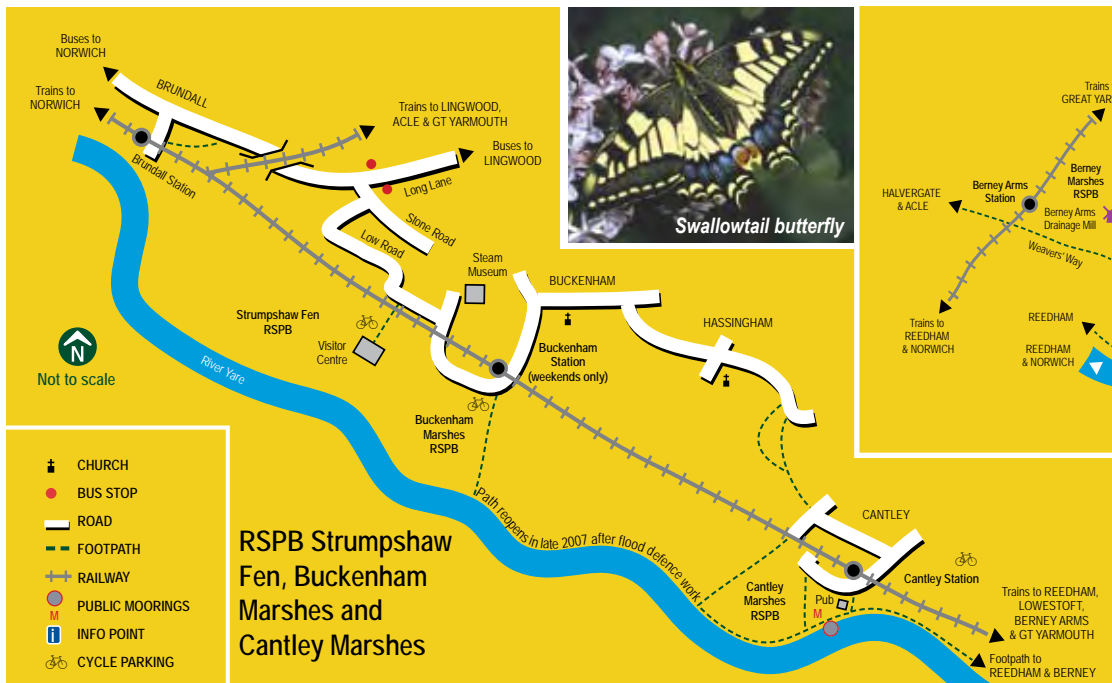

The Yare valley is a wonderful landscape, and an under-appreciated part of the Broads! On Sundays, the railway is a perfect way to explore - and using the small stations, you can be straight off the train into the countryside!

Footpaths and quiet lanes mean you can discover the whole valley: river, marshes, estuary, villages and wildlife. Berney Arms, Cantley and Reedham have places to eat and drink too. So whether your interest is birdwatching, rambling, cycling, churches, boats or Broadland heritage, ask for a Wherry Lines Rover ticket and explore!

RSPB Strumpshaw Fen is in the heart of the Norfolk Broads. The complex of reedbeds, fens, wet meadows, grazing marshes, scrub and wet woodland, connected by a maze of rivers, dykes and open pools, is characteristic of Broadland and supports an outstanding diversity of wildlife. Nature trails lead you through the varied habitats, including reedbeds and woodland. In the summer, there is a special trail in the flower-filled meadow, and you may hear a bearded tit or see a swallowtail butterfly near the reedbeds. Strumpshaw Fen is just a mile from Buckenham station and you get free admission if you show your train ticket!

RSPB Buckenham and Cantley Marshes are traditionally managed grazing marshes, supporting important numbers of breeding waders and wintering ducks and geese. Buckenham Marshes are right outside Buckenham station, while Cantley Marshes are easily reached from Cantley railway station. (N.B. the footpath across Cantley Marshes can be flooded at times.)

Experience the wide-open spaces of grazing marshes at RSPB Berney Marshes and mudflats at RSPB Breydon Water. Long-distance footpaths follow Breydon Water between Reedham, Berney and Great Yarmouth, where there is a hide (not RSPB), a short walk from Yarmouth station. At Berney Marshes, there is a nature trail and a viewing screen overlooking the marshes. Berney Marshes is a reserve you cannot get to by car - a short walk from Berney Arms station!

Opening
 Strumpshaw Fen is open daily from dawn to dusk. There is a small visitor centre with toilet. Bring your own refreshments. Admission: RSPB members free. Non-members £2.50 (child 50p, concessions £1.50, families £5.00) - or free with a valid train or bus ticket!

Buckenham, Cantley and Berney Marshes and Breydon Water can be viewed from footpaths at any time.
